

Speaking the Language of Engagement for Young Men

Safer Garden State Conference
September 2015

Description

This session will cover the broad topics of men's engagement. Specifically, college-aged young men. In ways that are congruent with maleness. Using strategies that support masculinity. To engage men – whether in preventing sexual assault, dating/domestic violence, or sexual exploitation – practitioners must learn to approach men as supporters, allies, and change agents. Seeing men as the target audience and speaking the language of men. Meeting men on their levels and focusing on men as integral parts of the solution.

Learning Outcomes

By the end of the session, participants will walk away knowing how to:

- Examine masculinity, specifically toxic masculinity and its impact
- Identify strategies to effectively introduce and continually engage men
- Explore the impact media messages have on masculinity
- Identify resources that will complement practitioners' work with men
- Strategies for women, to connect with men

Understanding Men

Understand, Accept, & Push

Shit, half the shit I say, I just make it up
To make you mad so kiss my white naked ass...

...And if it's not a rapper that I make it as I'ma be a fucking rapist in a Jason mask

Things we see on the screen are not ours,
But these niggas from the hood so these dreams not far,
Where I'm from, the dope boys is the rock stars,
But they can't cop cars without seein' cop cars,
I guess they want us all behind bars.
I know it.

Connecting with Male Residents

“When I’m talking to groups that are all men, we talk about how the masculine role limits them. They often want to talk about how they missed having real fathers, real loving, present fathers, because of the way that they tried to fit the picture of masculinity.”

~Gloria Steinem
